Mr. Rosenstein and Benjamin Doft, national president of the Palestine Projects Committee of the Zionist Organization of America, also present at the conference, agreed that the project would go through despite the persistence of "turbulent" conditions in Palestine "since it will be a force for stabilization."

An initial stock issue amounting to $200,000, which was offered December 23, has been virtually sold, Mr. Rosenstein said. He will leave soon for Palestine to obtain options on building contracts and to purchase land prior to the next stock offering which is expected to approximate $5,000,000.

The corporation's board will be composed of leaders in the field of rayon and textile manufacturing, says the New York Herald Tribune. One prominent board member will be Max Doft, president of Princeton Knitting Mills.

Jews Debarked By Unarmed Troops

More than 11,000 uncertified Jewish immigrants debarked at Cyprus under watch of hundreds of British troops and police from two converted cargo ships, Pan Crescent and Pan York, were reported mostly from the Balkans and Middle Europe, and had sailed from the Black Sea against orders of the Jewish Agency Executive.

The ships were brought to port under escort of British warships headed by the cruisers Mauritius and Phoebe after they had been intercepted in the Mediterranean.

Hundreds of British commandos, garrison troops and civil policemen lined up at the docks and the operation was so peaceful as to be anticlimactic.

All Jews were off the Pan Crescent by mid-afternoon. Those on the Pan York were filing quietly across gangplanks onto the quay.

Customarily, refugees are debarked by lighters rather than on the quayside. Authorities apparently believed that the strong security forces on hand made the direct debarkation safe.

The immigrants, packed into two 4,500-ton visaless ships offered no resistance to unarmed British marines who boarded the vessels when their five-day voyage from the Black Sea port of Burgas ended at Famagusta.

The ships had been intercepted outside territorial waters by the most powerful Royal Navy force yet employed in the blockade of Palestine against visaless immigrants.

Marines took over the bridges of both vessels just before they dropped anchor in Famagusta Bay and a captain of the Sixth Airborne Division boarded the Pan York [illegible] [illegible] 1,700 children, more than 1,000 of them under five years, were among the passengers. The ships carried 4,000 unaccompanied youths under 17 and 6,000 chalutzim (Jewish pioneers).

The military said organization on the vessels was excellent and medical arrangements made it possible to leave the sick there while awaiting a break in the weather. Fifty-five doctors were among those on board.

This was the first debarkation in Cyprus in which British troops

Interfaith Work Started In Europe

Dr. Everett R. Clinchy, president of the International Conference of Christians and Jews, who returned from Europe, expressed pessimism over the spiritual let-down of Europeans. In the seven countries he visited, including the United States zone in Germany, he found, however, a strong wish to organize councils of Protestants, Catholics and Jews.

The Louis J. Horowitz Foundation, of which Dr. Clinchy is a director, has made a grant of $10,000 to start operations in the seventeen cities he visited. A budget of $100,000 must be raised in Great Britain and the Continent, half of which is to be provided by Americans, with Britain agreeing to give $40,000.

With the cooperation of leaders in the fields of religion, politics, education, labor and youth and community organizations, councils in seventeen cities are being formed, Dr. Clinchy reported. Terming Europe's basic ailment "spiritual," he stressed the need for reconstruction of values and standards that built Christian civilization and made it clear that this must implement the Marshall plan. Unless this is accomplished, he said, war will follow.

As a result of a private audience with Pope Pius XII at the Vatican, Dr. Clinchy said he came

U.S. Checks On Use Of Relief Funds

The [illegible] Department moved [illegible] that the Department has asked both the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Treasury to investigate whether tax-free contributions to "religious and charitable organizations" are being spent to purchase American ships to run the British blockade of the Holy Land.

The investigation centered around two ships, the Pan York and the Pan Crescent, which debarked at Cyprus 11,000 Jewish immigrants from Europe.

A state Department spokesman said the government "had information" indicating that the vessels were procured with funds solicited by "an alleged relief agency." He would not name the agency.

The F. B. I. was called into the case because neutrality laws make it illegal for an American to outfit a ship for use against any friendly power. The friendly power in this case is Great Britain, which is understood to have protested to the State Department about the use of former American vessels in the illicit Europe-to-Palestine refugee traffic.

Says British Reports Show Bias

Charging bias in British official communiqués on Palestine, a spokesman from Histadrut (Jewish Labor Federation in Palestine) urged in New York an immediate investigation of the situation in that country by a United Nations committee.

Accusing the British of being "neutral on the side of the Arabs," Don Pines, editor of the Palestine Labor daily Davar, said that they had allowed fifty former German officers and 200 Spanish volunteers to enter Palestine to train and fight alongside Arab gangs.

Members of the Arab legions have been deputized by the British police but refuse to defend trains between Jerusalem and Tel Aviv, he declared. Yet when Haganah soldiers kill Arab gunmen, fewer casualties are usually reported by the British in a deliberate attempt to belittle Jewish efforts for self-defense, he continued.

"The attack at Kfar Yavetz, according to the British, resulted in six Arab dead, whereas the actual number was thirty," Mr. Pines said. "The official British report of Arabs killed between December 1 and December 26 was 162, though the actual count was over 270."

If the British would keep their promise of remaining neutral, both Jews and Arabs could come to terms without further bloodshed he believes.

Asks U.S. Help To Defend New State

Dr. Abba Hillel Silver, of Cleveland, Ohio, chairman of the American Section of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, called on the United States Government to help equip the militia in the new Jewish state in Palestine.

Dr. Silver, who is also chairman of the American Zionist Emergency Council, spoke at a dinner in his honor in the Astor Hotel in New York. Prominent Zionists paid tribute to his successful leadership of the Jewish cause before the United Nations, prior to his departure for Palestine to attend a meeting of the World Zionists Actions Committee.

The problem of the Jewish state is to be able to tide over the next ten months, Dr. Silver said. He asserted that once the Jewish state is established and admitted to the United Nations, neighboring states will seek ways for peaceful cooperation with the Jewish state.

"Peace with the Arab world will then be possible," he said. "The dangerous period is the short formative one of the next few months."

Dr. Silver said it would be highly desirable to have an international force accompany the United Nations Commission when it arrives in Palestine to carry out the instructions of the United Nations.

"It need not be large, but it must know what it is there for," he said. "It is immediately imperative that the Jewish people of Palestine shall be enabled to defend themselves. They have the manpower. They need arms. Surely those states, and foremost among them the United States, that voted to create a Jewish state must feel honor-bound and duty-bound to see that the citizens of [illegible]

[illegible] the United States holds the key to the situation, both as regards the formation of an international force and the equipment of the Jewish militia. Our Government has not hesitated to send arms and military missions in other parts of the world to back up its foreign policy."

He also urged the removal of restrictions against the immediate admission of large numbers of European refugees to Palestine.

Rabbi Silver decried the propaganda which he said was "being peddled about today in Washington by agents of all sorts," to the effect that Russian co-operation in partition is based on the hope that the Security Council—with Russian forces as a part of an international force—will have to step in, and that the Russians subsequently may never be dislodged.

"There are even some members in the Congress of the United States who, out of ignorance or malice, are lending themselves to the spreading of this baseless and mischievous propaganda," he said.

Dr. Emanuel Neumann, president of the Zionist Organization of America, was toastmaster. He praised Dr. Silver for his labors in behalf of the Zionist cause, pointing out that it was Dr. Silver who organized and directed the presentation of the Jewish case before the United Nations.

Dr. Israel Goldstein, president of the World Confederation of Zionists and national chairman of the United Palestine Appeal, also lauded Dr. Silver as a Zionist leader. At the same time he criticized Britain for her policy toward the Jewish state.

"Under the pretext of even-handed justice, it is supplying arms to the Arab aggressors and denying them to the Jewish defenders," he said. "Invoking technicalities, it is inviting the United Nations Palestine Commission to stay out of Palestine until Britain is ready to leave, thus deliberately planning to create a situation of chaos."

Messages congratulating Dr. Silver were received from Governor Dewey, Bartley C. Crum, one of the United States members of the Anglo-American Committee of Inquiry for Palestine; Senator Robert A. Taft, Representative John W. McCormack, House Minority Leader; Representative Joseph W. Martin Jr., House Majority Leader; Gen. John H. Hilldring, former Assistant Secretary of State; Dr. Louis Finkelstein, president of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America; Mayor Thomas A. Burke of Cleveland; Moshe Shertok, head of the political department of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, and others.

Warns Against Effort To Dictate To Arab And Jewish States

In a brief summing up of past, present and future Soviet policy on Palestine, Andrei A. Gromyko issued a warning in New York against any effort by "foreign monopolies" to dictate the future economies of the newly created Arab and Jewish states. The occasion was a "U.S.A., U.S.S.R., Palestine friendship dinner."

Mr. Gromyko, chief Soviet delegate to the United Nations, also defended the decision on partition as equally just to Arabs and Jews. He critized Great Britain for saying that the United Nations commission should not enter Palestine until shortly before the termination of the mandate.

The delegate's views were presented at a dinner in the Hotel Commodore attended by 1,000 members and guests of the American Committee of Jewish Writers, Artists and Scientists.

Herschel V. Johnson, permanent United States representative to the United Nations, had been invited to be a speaker with Mr. Gromyko, but illness prevented the former from attending.

The dinner guests adopted a resolution praising Mr. Johnson for his role in the successful partition fight. At Lenox Hill Hospital, he was said to be "doing nicely" in recovering from a recent heart attack.

Mr. Gromyko emphasized the importance of the agreement between his country and the United States on the subject of Palestine. This was echoed in an address by Dr. Emanuel Neumann, president of the Zionist Organization of America, and in a statement read in behalf of Moshe Shertok, head of the political department of the Jewish Agency. All expressed hope that the agreement was not an [illegible]

The United Nations Commission on Palestine faces serious difficulties, but he felt that it had the powers to contend with them.

"It has the necessary authority," he said, "in case complicated problems required the interference of the United Nations confront it. This authority is insured by the fact that the commission must work under the instructions of the Security Council, which is already occupied with the Palestinian question and which in case of necessity is ready to deal with this question in order to assist the speediest and most effective execution of the decision on the partition of Palestine.

"There is no need for me to explain at length that not only the decision taken on Palestine, but its fulfillment, has been facilitated by the fact that it has become possible for such powers as the U.S.S.R. and the U. S. A. to agree on this question. As is known, the agreement between these two countries on important questions of international significance is rather an infrequent phenomenon at present.

"It is only regretted that after the adoption by the General Assembly of the decision on Palestine, the number of incidents as a result of the clashes between separate groups of Arabs and Jews has increased there.

"These incidents are the consequence of the actions of some irresponsible elements attempting to hamper the realization of the plan of its partition. Such actions cannot prevent decision.

"We cannot agree with the assertions which imply that the decision on the partition of Palestine is aimed against the Arabs and Arab countries. It is our deep conviction that this decision corresponds to fundamental national interests of both the Jews and Arabs.

"The possibilities of good-neighborly and friendly relations between both of the states are insured by the decision itself. In this connection, suffice it to point out, for instance, the decision on economic cooperation will enable both of the states to utilize their [illegible] when such a [illegible] is based upon taking into consideration the interests of both of the peoples but not when it constitutes the means of adaptation of the economy of these new states to the economic needs of foreign monopolies, which as it is known, are always ready to trample on the independence of any small and defenseless state, especially when

• CANADIAN YOUNG Judaea: Calling for the lifting of the embargo on arms to the Jews of Palestine, Dr. David Petegorsky, executive director of the American Jewish Congress, told 125 delegates attending the 17th biennial convention in Ottawa that the Jews of Palestine are eager to abide by and to support the U.N. decision; the Arabs are seeking to defy it by force and violence. Such "neutrality" ten years ago in Spain between the Republic Government and Franco's Fascist rebels shattered democracy in that country and installed Fascism in power, he said. S. J. Zacks, of Toronto, president of the Zionist Organization of Canada, spoke at a luncheon tendered by the Ottawa Hadassah, paying tribute to Canada for the role she played in bringing about the establishment of a Jewish State. Of Pots, Pans, And Puddings In Palestine

By Molly Lyons Bar-David

"What is the everyday life of the Palestinian housewife like?" I get asked again and again in letters from abroad. Newsflashes, banner headlines, front page stories, true and tragic as they may be, have a way of distorting the picture. Jewish life in Palestine is so rooted that, with all the storms about it, it stands firm. We feel secure—so secure that Bette Davis interests us, and nylon stockings and gymnastics for the children. That is in town, of course. In the country it's the gladioli bed, the Children's Hour on the radio, and the new wire screen for the door.

Not that life in Palestine is frivolous; only that it is not subject to fear, even though the drama of the day is ever with us. A striking example of what I mean is given by my mother's remark, although that was in 1936. Our cottage on an isolated farm was fired on night after night for months, and we had to sleep on the floor. After a lull of several days we returned to our beds to be awakened after midnight by the whizzing of bullets about the eaves. Sleepily we dragged our mattresses on the floor, as mother sighed and said: "Oh dear, there go my clean sheets again!"

In such an atmosphere the pudding and the stew still make sense to the housewife. What is it like, for instance, to shop and cook—for shopping and cooking go on—in Palestine? That depends where one lives. In the collective settlements it is a big affair. A thing called tarif or budget governs all. The housewife, as such, does not exist. Unless she has specialized in cookery at one of the 120 training centres, the chalutza probably works elsewhere than in the kitchen most of the time.

Cooking, like factory work, is done by mass production. The provisions, purchased by the Kibbutz from its own or other production would floor the ordinary housewife by their quantity. Some of the pots and pans are big enough to drown in. The stacks of dishes make one dizzy to look at. In the early days of new settlements the kitchens, with primitive stoves and equipment, are enough to frighten the modern woman out of her wits. But eventually the electric stoves, the electric mixers, electric peelers, and even dish-washers, are introduced and the kibbutz kitchen becomes a modern restaurant service.

Food has improved with the prosperity of the settlements. The "belly-fillers" — beans, lentils and cabbage — have given way to properly planned and balanced menus with special diet for convalescent and expectant mothers and for all members during the hot and heavy working season. During the war the settlers, who worked exceedingly hard planting on the home front, were probably the best fed people in Palestine. Those "kibbutzniks" who used to come to town thin and drawn, later came to town with baskets of unavailable eggs, thick cream, undreamt-of in the cities, and home-made white bread!

Meals in the settlements to-day are good; but as they are always planned with an eye on in-season provisions and the budget, they sometimes become monotonous. Preparing food in such quantities is a job and not an art. It is consumed in the huge dining hall which sometimes seats a thousand people, but, unlike the kitchen, has no restaurant stamp, being too full of comradeship and family feeling.

The Moshav and the private farmer's wife probably gets the greatest satisfaction out of her kitchen. Her shopping is done chiefly in her own garden and farmyard. She knows which hen is a poor layer. It has always puzzled me how anyone can at a glance pick six poor layers out of a flock of a thousand chickens—the unfortunate ones being doomed for the pot. Eggs too large to pack turn up as double-yolkers at breakfast. The carrots pulled from the moist earth are crisp and fresh, and the pride of her own efforts. Milk and butter, fruit and flowers, are rewards for her long hours of work.

Her home is fairly modern. A kitchen sink with built-in cupboards line one wall. The spacious kitchen serves as a dining room. The housewife cooks on a primus stove — that Swedish contribution to Palestine, which has probably driven more women from this country than riots. It is lit with alcohol and a noisy flame feeds on kerosene.

Her baking is also done on the primus, in a "wonder-pot", so that all cakes turn out shaped like "Angel Cake", with a hole in the centre. Women have become apt at baking with "dibbis", a date syrup, and at concocting all manner of recipes calling for much fruit and little sugar.

In the Moshav, the principle of self-labour and co-operative living is the cornerstone, and one may not under ordinary circumstances hire help. So our housewife, who is also a farmer, cooks simple meals throughout the week and goes all out in grand style for the Sabbath menu.

In town, shopping is fun. You can, of course, pick up the telephone and have anything your heart desires delivered in cellophane, post haste. But there is also the "shook," the market. And whosoever shuns the "shook" misses one of the prime joys of life in Palestine. These markets are colourful, dirty, and very cheap—if one may use such a term in inflation days. Modern Tel Aviv and Haifa have modern indoor markets, of course, places that gleam with white tiling, and look like the grocery floor in the largest of modern American departmental stores, but the old outdoor "shook" still holds its own.

The town woman of all walks of life meet at the "shook" and carry their purchases, stuffed in net bags, to their homes. How different, though, are their dwellings! The Oriental woman lives in a single room with her family of six. Her kitchen is a boarded-up nook in the court-yard. She fetches her water from a well in the neighbourhood and all the rubbish has to be carted away. Her house is primitive, strictly kosher and generally very clean. Her dinner usually consists of "eggplant" fried in oil with garlic, salad and black bread. All the family will eat out of the same large dish, seated on the floor or round a table, using their hands oftener than a spoon.

The Last Candle Is Out In The House Of Herzl

By Leib Jaffe

With the tragic death of Stephan Norman, Theodor Herzl's grandson, the last candle has been extinguished in the House of Herzl. Capt. Norman visited Palestine twice: once on his way to England from Ceylon, where he served as an officer in the British Army, and the second time on his way back to Ceylon from England.

I spent half a day with him on his first visit here. He was handsome and gave the impression of being strong and healthy in body and soul. I was fascinated by his eyes; they were the eyes of his mother, Trude, whom I had known, and of his grandfather.

He asked me about his grandfather and about the early days of Zionism. Our time was short. I took him up to the Hebrew University and we spent about an hour in the National Library. He showed a great interest in the different editions of the "Judenstaat". Before going up to Mt. Scopus he had been shown the Herzl room at the Jewish National Fund offices. I brought him to Nikanor's Cave, where we stood at the graves of Pinsker and Ussishkin. He was deeply moved.

Upon his second visit, on his way back to Ceylon, I failed to see him, as I happened to be ill. He made a tour of several settlements, accompanied by Dr. Lauterbach, and found it impossible to call on me. When he arrived in England after his first visit in Palestine he wrote me among other things:

"I meant to write to you immediately on arrival, but I have had very bad news. Mother is dead—she died in Theresin. I don't know when or how. There is no news of my father. I need not tell you more."

Then he wrote about the Zionist Conference which was held in London in August 1945, and which he attended:

"It was a wonderful and memorable experience and I only wish I could have been in a happier frame of mind for it . . . And of Palestine — what can I say with my heart so full of all I saw there? I could only think again and again of my grandfather's words: 'Wenn ihr wollt, ist es kein Marchen'."

In a letter after his second visit he expressed his regret that he had been unable to see me:

"I was very sorry indeed to hear that you are not well, and trust you are by now well on the way to recovery. I did very much want to see you again, as I had so enjoyed our one day together and I wanted to thank you for your kind sympathy in my great loss. I have since heard that my father, too, has died."

He mentions, in the same letter, his visit with Dr. Lauterbach to Kiryat Anavim, the Agricultural Research Institute at Rehovoth, and to Givat Brenner:

"I saw a lot of Tel Aviv," he writes, "and in the evening went to a performance of the new Habimah Theatre. This is too short a letter to tell you my impressions and feelings. I will do so later when I get back to my Unit. I will only say now that I was overwhelmed by what I saw. It is a fairy tale come true, and to see the love and pride in their work in the peoples' eyes, whether they were settlement workers or townsmen, was wonderful to witness. When I left, a big piece of my heart stayed behind. I hope it will not be long before we meet again."

In his letter of March 7th, 1946, he writes:

"It was so nice to read of all the celebrations in honour of my grandfather (upon the 50th anniversary of the publication of his 'Judenstaat'), and of the care and love that is given to his memory, his writings and possessions. As you know, I visited the room myself, when I was in Jerusalem. I only had a few minutes there, but you can imagine what a thrill it was to me to see it, and I hope to spend considerably longer there, and among the archives, on my next visit. I should be demobbed in June, this year, and hope definitely to come to Palestine for a longer visit soon after that, because I want to see as much as possible of the country; and I am looking forward tremendously to this visit.

"My heart, too, is heavy at the thought of our sad remnant still in Europe. But it is full of hope, for Zionism is hope, real, active and ever growing. They must be, they will be given a chance to live, decently, in freedom, again. Their hearts, their souls, are with you, and may they themselves be with you very soon. I kno whow hard you are all striving for that day."

In another letter he writes:

"I was very moved by your letter and the description of the Jewish parachutists. The world in general and Palestine in particular are going through anxious and difficult times. The impressions of my two very short visits, however, were very strong indeed, and greatest among them was the spirit of faith and confidence in themselves and their future that I found in all the people I saw and spoke to, and in their work and achievements. The old feelings of sadness and despair that one encounters so often in the Diaspora, are replaced everywhere in the Yishuv with hope and strength, and no one can leave without imbibing some of that wonderful feeling. You are indeed right in what you said of the spirit of the Yishuv. I am sure that the members of the Executive and all the other visitors who have recently been to Palestine, have left it refreshed in mind and body, and with a new vigour to help them tackle the difficult problems ahead.

"I read that there are plans to have the next Congress in Palestine, and I welcome the idea, because I feel that the more people from outside Palestine can see things there for themselves, the more they will become convinced, and the greater will be

Leaves Estate To Hillel

After witnessing the work of the Hillel Foundations, the late Joseph Rubin, of Effingham, Ill., has left $55,000 — the bulk of his estate — to Hillel at the University of Illinois, at Champaign.

Mr. Rubin was 70 years old at the time of his death. Until two years ago he had been completely estranged from Jewish life.

In acknowledgement of the gift, the Hillel trustees at Illinois will establish a Joseph Rubin Memorial in connection with the $200,000 Hillel building soon to be erected at Champaign. It will consist of a memorial courtyard as well as a number of services in the actual work of Hillel itself.

His gift is the second largest ever made to the Foundation. Joseph Baumgarten, of Hilladale, Mich., has contributed a total of $250,000 to Hillel at Northwestern University, and Max Karasik of Chicago gave $50,000 to Hillel at the University of Chicago.

Social Notes — Montreal

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Burshtyn, 3050 Bloomfield Avenue, celebrated the bar-mitzvah of their son, Irving Samuel, who was called to the Reading of the Law at Beth Moishe Synagogue. Receiving one hundred guests at a dinner, at Rev. M. Master's Hall, with Mr. and Mrs. Burshtyn and Irving Samuel were his grandmother, Mrs. Clara Taliaman, and his brother and sister, Peter, and Miss Ruth Burshtyn. Mrs. Burshtyn wore a grey dinner gown, trimmed with silver sequins at the neck, and on the pockets, with a wrist bouquet of Taliaman roses. Mrs. Clara Talisman wore a black crepe afternoon dress, trimmed with black sequins. Miss Ruth Burshtyn wore a black faille ballerina dress, with an off-the-shoulder neckline, and gardenias in her hair. Rev. Master officiated at the bar-mitzvah procession, in which were: Mrs. Clara Talisman, the grandmother, with Peter Burshtyn; Mr. and Mrs. I. Talisman, Mr. and Mrs. R. Birchwood, Mr. and Mrs. H. Epstein, Mr. and Mrs. Ben. Talisman, all uncles and aunts of Irving Samuel; Miss Ruth Burshtyn, and Michael Birchwood, a cousin of the bar-mitzvah boy; and Mr. and Mrs. I. Denberg, Mr. and Mrs. D. Chaikin, Mr. and Mrs. S. Flegg, Mr. and Mrs. I. Burshtyn, Mr. and Mrs. W. Talisman, Mr. and Mrs. S. White, all cousins of Irving Samuel; and Mr. and Mrs. L. Herschorn joined the procession at the end, and spoke to the bar-mitzvah boy, and all the guests, and presented Irving Samuel with a talith. The birthday cake was decorated in the shape of a Torah, and inscribed; and had white candles with blue ribbons. The head table was decorated with centrepieces of roses, gardenias, and seasonal flowers, with candles in the centre. Ben. Talisman, uncle of Irving Samuel, was toastmaster. Dinner music was played; and there was dancing afterwards. Irving Samuel spoke in thanks.

MARRIAGES

HAHN-HANDMAN

The marriage of Freda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Handman, 615 Champagneur Avenue, to Jack Hahn, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. Hahn, took place at Beth David Synagogue on December 14, at half-past twelve o'clock, Rabbi S. Herschorn officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white slipper-satin floor-length gown, designed with an off-the-shoulder neckline, inset with Belgian lace; long, pointed sleeves, and tightly-fitted Basque bodice, and full skirt, with a short train. Her lace cap had seed-pearl embroidery on top, and orange blossoms at each side; and her tulle veil was floor-length. She carried a prayer-book covered with white orchids and streamers of baby's breath. Mrs. S. Zusman, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a cinnamon-brown cocktail dress, with matching hat and gloves, and carried a bouquet of yellow carnations. Josef Hahn, of Tel Aviv, Palestine, brother of the groom, was best man. "Because" was sung. Palms were used for decoration. Receiving at luncheon at the synagogue, Mrs. Handman, mother of the bride, wore a powder-blue lace afternoon dress, with a matching hat. The bride and groom left for Lake Placid, N.Y., Mrs. Hahn travelling in a grey wool suit, with a matching hat, grey accessories, and a brown fur coat. They will live on Sherbrooke Street. Alfred Shoenfield, of Syracuse, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Goldstein, of Ottawa, Ont.; and Mrs. Kaufman, and daughter, Wanda, of Brussels, Belgium, were wedding guests.

OF POTS, PANS, AND PUDDINGS

The small-income housewife's family will probably share a flat and kitchen with another family. Her food will usually consist of the European fare to which she is accustomed: "gefilte" fish and "cholet" and "kishki" and "strudel". If the two women are friendly, they sometimes pool their meals and help each other. If not, they may work at the same sink and not speak when they are "mad" with each other.

The average woman, however, has her own flat and her own kitchen. As often as not she cooks on a gas or electric stove. The latter, in Jerusalem, is a burden these days, for, unlike the system operating in the rest of the country, Jerusalem's lights fall several days and nights a week. However, there is always the primus stove to fall back upon in an emergency.

Our modern housewife has pretty chinaware, good silver and pots of flowers on the table. She reads up cookery in the magazines and listens to it on the radio. She gives small tea parties and goes out to her friends. She has a maid, or at least a charwoman. She enjoys the wide variety of fruits and vegetables in Palestine and does without meat except at week-ends, because of its high price.

As most women nowadays of this class are either employed or do a good deal of social work, cooking is not elaborate. Entertaining is comparatively simple, too, and usually limited to a few persons at a time. A beverage, sweets and light refreshment is generally all that is offered, except at such functions as a wedding or bar-mitzvah when things are done in style.

To simplify one's way of life became the fashion during the war, and the fashion seems to have come to stay. The wonderful whipped cream cakes and five-course meals have given way to yeast cakes and supper in the kitchen. And most women seem to like it. To get eggs, meat and fish after so many years of deprivation is a great thrill, but the local housewife has come to accept these things as treats rather than usual fare. Austerity in the cupboard is likely to have a long reign.

thorities are often guilty of proselytizing and other forms of unfair pressure on the children and parents to obtain enrollments in the religious classes.

"Jewish children occasionally attend Christian classes regularly for fear of disclosing their differences of religious belief," he reports.

"The extent of religious instruction which can be imparted in the very limited time allotted under the program is negligible. Moreover, there is a grave danger that the program may defeat its own purpose in that parents may assume that released time instruction is an adequate substitute for regular after-hour or Sunday school religious instruction."

The Central Board of Hungarian Jews has appealed to the Ministry of Education for an order dissolving 93 Jewish communities which have been depopulated beyond hope of recovery.

Says Religious Study Plan Not Good

Actual operation of released public school time for religious education has not met to any appreciable extent the problem of growing religious illiteracy among American youth, Leo Pfeffer, assistant director of the Commission on Law and Social Action, says in a pamphlet on "Religion And The Public Schools," issued by the Office of Jewish Information, American Jewish Congress.

Mr. Pfeffer, in his conclusions based on a long study of the released time plan, writes:

"Released time represents a threat to the American principle of the separation of church and state, particularly, but not limited to programs involving use of public school classrooms for the released time classes. By bringing religious differences into the public schools, the program is a divisive influence, and in actual practice frequently promotes inter-religious friction and disharmony."

He adds that public school au-

CLASS IN COOKERY

HONEY CAKE

one cup sugar
one cup honey
three cups sifted flour
one cup of tea
three teaspoons baking powder
one-half teaspoon baking soda
one-half teaspoon salt
one teaspoon allspice
one-half teaspoon cinnamon rind of one orange one cup walnuts, or almonds

Beat eggs well, add sugar, beating constantly. Add honey gradually and beat the mixture thoroughly. Add tea slowly and alternately with sifted flour, mixed with all the dry ingredients. Bake in an oven at 350 degrees for fifteen minutes, then decrease the heat to 300 degrees for an additional twenty-five minutes. Add a little of the flour to the nuts and fold them in, mixed with raisins, if desired. This makes a large and high cake. If a round pan, eleven inches in diameter, is used, the cake will be three inches high.

Mrs. P. Braunstein,
4187 Hingston Avenue, Montreal.

NEAPOLITAN DESSERT

one cup sugar
two and one-half cups flour
one cup melted butter
pinch baking soda

Add sugar to slightly-beaten egg, and cream together. Add butter, then add flour and baking soda, kneading mixture slightly. Divide dough into three or four parts, and put each part in a layer-cake tin. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 or 375 degrees, for about fifteen minutes, or until light brown. Use a chocolate pudding mixture, and when thick and chilled, it can be spread as a filling between layers, and over the sides and top. This cake must be baked and filled twenty-four hours before time of serving, and kept in a cool place. A chocolate frosting, as an additional icing, can be spread over top and sides.

Mrs. Jack Rubin,
563 Victoria Avenue, Montreal.

TORONTO MARRIAGES

GULKO-STERN

The marriage of Florence Cecile, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Louis Stern, 232 Palmerston Avenue, to Norman Gulko, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Gulko, 166 Bellwoods Avenue, took place on Thursday, December 25, at six o'clock, at the home of Rabbi K. Bernstein, 516 Palmerston Boulevard, who officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. Her white crepe gown was fashioned with a peplum, V-neckline, long sleeves, and a straight skirt with slit in front; her finger-tip veil was caught to a plumed headdress, and she carried a cascade of red roses. Miss Kitty Stern, who attended the bride as maid of honour, wore a ballerina dress of bottle-green velvet, with green shoulder-length veil, and carried a nosegay. Harris David Gulko was best man. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mrs. Stern wearing a black crepe dress, trimmed with powder-blue, and a corsage of roses. Mrs. Gulko, mother of the groom, also receiving, was in grey crepe, with [illegible]. For the wedding trip to Buffalo, N.Y., the bride wore a black crepe dress, topped by a black Persian lamb coat, black hat with white plume, and black accessories. The couple will take up residence at 324 Bathurst Street. Out-of-town wedding guests were: Mr. and Mrs. J. Barclay, and Mr. and Mrs. B. Lipson, of Detroit, Mich.

"If I can be reasonably convinced that there is a possibility of intertrade between South Africa and Palestine, I shall personally do my utmost to assist in providing shipping facilities and would be prepared at the beginning to send two or three ships to Palestine for such purpose," said F. C. Sturrock, M.P. Minister of Transport, when he opened the Palestine Industrial Exhibition in Johannesburg.

their efforts in the future. You can be a good Zionist, but until you have seen what Zion is doing and how they are doing it, you can have no real idea; and everyone, Jew and non-Jew alike, if he approaches Palestine with an open mind, and is determined to see with his own eyes, must surely leave as an ambassador and as a friend; if he has been a friend in the past, then he will leave as a greater friend.

"I am looking forward very, very much to my next, and, I hope, much longer visit."

In his last letter to me, dated May 23rd, 1946, he writes:

"I am being demobbed in June and hope it will not be too long before I can come to Palestine. I would certainly like to be in Palestine for the Congress. The decision to hold it there was certainly the right one, and the Habimah Theatre will be a magnificent setting."

I negotiated with various people about the possibility of bringing Capt. Norman to Palestine and enabling him to make his home here.

He is no longer with us, this charming and winning young man. An ancient Greek tragedy seems to have been enacted here. It is a mystery to us. Not a single member of Herzl's family has survived. Nothing is left for us but to commemorate the spirit of the grandfather, the spirit which found an echo in the heart of the grandson who passed away in the prime of life.

MARRIAGES

FINKELSTEIN-WISE

The marriage of Molly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Wise, 655 College Street, to William Finkelstein, son of Mrs. G. Finkelstein, 118 Grace Street, and the late O. Finkelstein, took place on Sunday, December 7, at six o'clock, at Hebrew Men of England Synagogue, Rabbi A. Kelman officiating, assisted by Rabbis A. Levy and M. Langer. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a Victorian gown of white satin, fashioned with a square neckline, fitted bodice, and long skirt, with padded hips, embroidered in front with seed pearl beads in motifs of roses and leaves, and ending in a long train. Her full-length veil of embroidered net was arranged with a pearl-beaded crown, and she carried a white Bible, decorated with gardenias and streamers of baby's breath and sweet peas. Miss Ruth Finkelstein, sister of the groom, attended the bride as maid of honour, wearing a powder-blue brocaded satin gown, with nylon skirt, low round neckline, cap sleeves, and matching nylon gloves, with a blue satin bonnet, trimmed with ostrich plumes, and carried a fan of American Beauty roses and white carnations. Samuel Wise, brother of the bride, was best man, and Sol. Finkelstein, William Greenspoon, Sidney Traves, Morris Factor, Morris Wasser, Sol. Rotenberg, Leo Rotenberg, Jack Rosen, Sidney Shore, and Harry Feld were ushers. Lawrence Rotenberg carried the ring on a heart-shaped, embroidered white satin cushion. During the ceremony, "Because" was sung. At dinner in the synagogue, Mrs. Wise, mother of the bride, received, wearing a gown of royal-blue crepe, embroidered with silver sequins, and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Finkelstein, mother of the groom, was in a powder-blue gown, with Chantilly lace top, embroidered in silver sequins and seed pearl beads, and a corsage of pink roses. For the wedding trip to New York, the bride wore a blue gabardine suit, with white lace blouse, a muskrat coat, and a corsage of orchids. The bride and groom will reside at 656 College Street. Out-of-town wedding guests were: Mrs. M. Braverman and daughter, Sally Ann, and D. Greenspoon, of Sudbury.

ANISMAN-BRESVER

The marriage of Sandra, daughter of Mrs. H. Bresver, 139 Rushholme Road, to David Bernard Anisman, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. P. Anisman, took place on Sunday, December 28, at Bais Yehuda Synagogue, Rabbi A. Kelman officiating. The background was of white chrysanthemums and the white carpeted aisle was marked off with garlands of the same flowers. The bride wore a gown of blush-colored satin, fashioned with moulded bodice, long sheath-tight sleeves, a sheer net yoke, and satin berths embroidered in seed pearl beads, the full skirt sweeping into a train which fell from a gathered bustle. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was attached to a coronet of seed pearl beads, and she carried a bouquet of Calla lilies. Mrs. N. Bresver, sister-in-law of the bride, attended her as matron of honour, wearing a gown of turquoise-blue crepe, with sequin trimming, and carried a cascade of pink roses, with matching headdress. The bridesmaids were Misses Molly and Toby Anisman, sisters of the groom, gowned alike in yellow and mauve brocaded taffeta, fashioned with dropped shoulders and bustle-backs. They had floral headdresses, and carried matching nosegays. Gail Pearl, niece of the groom, as flower girl, wore a period frock of blue taffeta, with matching poke-bonnet, and carried a nosegay of pink and white rosebuds. Irving Frisch attended the groom as best man, and the ushers were Arthur Anisman and Morris Hermalin. Philip Anisman, nephew of the groom, was ring-bearer. A reception was held at Murray House, the bride's mother, Mrs. Bresver, wearing a blue crepe gown, with silver accessories, hat of pale pink roses and ostrich plumes, and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. R. Anisman, aunt of the groom, also receiving, was in black crepe, trimmed with sequins, with corsage of red roses. The bride and groom left by plane for New York on their wedding trip, the former wearing a navy-blue wool suit, with matching accessories, Persian lamb coat, and a corsage of yellow roses. They will reside in Toronto. Mr. and Mrs. R. Adler, of Montreal, Que.; and Mr. and Mrs. A. Anisman, of Winnipeg, Man., were among the wedding guests.

Inner Voices

In every man there is an inner voice calling that individual to do what is right and just. Because man is a child of God he must endeavour to fulfil the God-like qualities of righteousness and justice. This inner voice is called conscience. Every human being has a conscience. He may at times suppress conscience but ultimately conscience will sit in judgment and assert itself. Only when man has reverted to the beast can it be said of him that he is conscienceless.

When the brethren of Joseph sold him in slavery and brought his torn garment to Jacob as supposed evidence that Joseph was no more, the old father wept. Little did the brethren believe that conscience would some day sit in judgment upon them. Indeed, in all probability they scorned conscience. But the day did come when these brethren had to appear before the man they had wronged and ask forgiveness, hoping and praying that Joseph would not revenge the wrong done to him.

No one can escape conscience, and this voice is one of the great realities of life. Richard the Third wanted the English throne. He obtained his ambition at the expense of friends and patriots, but the day came when he least expected conscience to attack him, and he cried, "God have mercy."

Along with the voice of conscience one must ever hearken to the voice of reason. For conscience by itself is an uncertain guide in life. Blessed are the men and women who are faithful to the two inner voices, conscience and reason. When the voice of conscience suggests, the voice of reason can correct the promptings of conscience. For conscience alone may at times lead to error.

Then there is the group conscience which can attitudinize the individual and cause him to do wrong. Torquemada possessed a churchianity conscience and truly believed that in persecuting Jews he was performing what was right. When the Jews of Amsterdam excommunicated Spinoza, one of the loveliest sons of the synagogue, they followed a Jewish conscience. They failed to reason and hence rendered a disservice to the cause of Israel. And, of course, Protestants in their prejudices follow a so-called Protestant conscience.

Hence, the import of reason in all life's dealings. Alas, we are living in an age when truth is so often crucified; where peoples' minds are propagandized with all sorts of poisonous thoughts. How all the more urgent it is that we cultivate the mind and learn to think through for ourselves the problems with which we are challenged. The faith in reason must be recaptured if civilization is to be saved.

Every community has the privileged who are of self-interest, who wish to have and to hold. They are selfish and unconcerned with the masses. Every community too has its "crackpots", and the frustrated members of the lunatic fringe of society. Therefore, good people who are guided by conscience and reason must stand at the helm of things and advance the cause of humanity.

Alas, too often the good fail to assert themselves and evil people come to power and bring unhappiness in the world. This explains the rise of Hitler. People possessed of reason and conscience did not take this lunatic seriously. They laughed but failed to enter into combat in the cause of righteousness and behold the tragedy and misery which Hitler perpetrated upon the world!

Those who have been faithful to the inner voices of conscience and reason have made ideals possible in the world. They, in faithfulness, sacrificed themselves that humanity might grow in soul. These have often known persecution but they had the joy of personal satisfaction in having been true to the highest and to God. This was the lot of Moses, Amos, and Jesus, and of Socrates.

Men of conscience and reason were these and, faithful to these God-given inner voices, they fought stupidity. Truly they gained immortality while living. These are not dead even today. Millions throughout the world bless these names and are inspired to follow their example in consecrated service to fellow-man.

Because ours is an age weighed down by hypocrisy and the darkness of prejudice, it is of urgency that men and women employ conscience and reason and thus find blessings and in turn bring blessings to fellow-man.

WARNS AGAINST

such a state itself does not value sufficiently its sovereignty and its independence if this is accompanied by the increase of their profit."

Mr. Gromyko declared that the people of the Arab East always had had the sympathy of the Soviet Union in their fight to throw off "the last shackles of colonial dependence."

His country, he said, supported the principles of equality of rights and self-determination of peoples, was itself a multi-national state without racial or national discrimination and had a constitution that gave all its people equal rights.

"The Soviet Union," the envoy declared, "supports and cannot but support the aspirations of any state and any people, no matter how small its weight in international affairs is, in the struggle against foreign dependence and remnants of colonial oppression. This is in accordance with the basic principles of the United Nations, which provide protection of sovereignty and independence of states and peoples."

Successful realization of United Nations decisions, Mr. Gromyko continued, "requires the cooperation of Great Britain with the United Nations and first of all with the above-mentioned commission not in words but in deeds; formal cooperation is absolutely insufficient."

The speaker added that it would be an "abnormal" situation if the United Nations commission spent too much of its time at Lake Success instead of going to Palestine "and getting acquainted with the state of affairs existing there and carrying out on the spot the tasks entrusted to it."

"It is said," Mr. Gromyko observed, "that the British authorities in Palestine intend to hinder the work of the commission in this respect, that they are not going to admit it into Palestine until the British troops are withdrawn from considerable areas; in other words, they will not permit it to enter Palestine until May 1 or June 1, 1948.

"I do not know whether this information corresponds to reality, but if it appeared that it did, then such a situation cannot be considered as normal. The commission has been created precisely for the purpose of carrying out its work in Palestine, i. e., where it is obliged to assist in the fulfillment of the decision of the Assembly.

"Let us hope that Great Britain will yet cooperate with the commission in the solution of this question not in words but in deeds, and at any rate that it will not place any obstacles on the way to the fulfillment of this decision."

Greetings from Dr. Albert Einstein, honorary president of the sponsoring committee, and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt were read at the dinner.

Pierre van Paassen, author, said the Palestine issue was linked to the liberation of the entire Near East, Middle East and Asia. Joseph Brainin, chairman of the committee, was toastmaster.

INTERFAITH WORK

away "encouraged." He was impressed with the Pope's grasp of the "gravity" of the situation. The Pope told him conditions made him "very sad," particularly reports about the suffering of "people of good will" in Germany and Eastern Europe.

Interfaith councils may write a new chapter in German history, Dr. Clinchy predicted. Under the councils' programs, individuals in a political party will be able to give to opposition parties "the rights and respect they demand for themselves," he added.

He said Gen. Lucius D. Clay, who heads the American Military Government there, is convinced that without spiritual rehabilitation, economic recovery will not be able to resist "the disease of materialism."

"If Europe's basic ailment is not cured, and cured fairly soon, she will go down and in all probability carry with her the whole of Western civilization," Dr. Clinchy warned, adding that "hatred and strife" threaten to wreck reconstruction and hopes of world peace.

He conceded that many Germans were "lost and hopeless" and were interested only in food, heat and clothing. There were a sufficient number of Germans, however, who were willing to "go ahead with this idea." Dr. Clinchy pointed out that no program could be successfully superimposed on the Germans, that they must work it out themselves with the facilities provided by General Clay.

Dr. and Mrs. Clinchy returned aboard the Mauretania after traveling in Great Britain, Germany, Switzerland, France, Belgium and the Netherlands. After conferring with Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, head of the British zone in Germany, Dr. Clinchy learned the British probably would develop similar programs, he said.

JEWS DEBARKED

were unarmed. Even the colonel's holster was empty — a contrast to the arrival of the first visaless immigrants in August, 1946, when troops with Bren guns lined the streets.

The would-be immigrants, looking nondescript but warmly dressed, were quick to obey the orders of the youthful leader wearing a bearskin hat, who acted as liaison with the military.

The British Foreign Office issued this statement:

"In accordance with the usual practice in dealing with illegal immigrants' ships, Royal Naval vessels signaled the two masters in the Mediterranean and asked them whether they would go to Cyprus direct.

"They agreed. This has not happened in any previous illegal immigration operations. We provided boarding parties in agreement with the two masters. The ships were not arrested. Nor are they to be regarded as 'pirates', as widely suggested in British newspapers. They have committed no act of 'piracy.'"

The Foreign Office spokesman said no reason was given by the ship's masters for wanting British boarding parties, but that it was possible that the parties were called to forestall disorders.

Replying to a question, the spokesman said: "It should not be presumed that the owners will get the ships back." The vessels could be impounded.

Ships previously intercepted bringing uncertified Jews to Palestine have been routed to Haifa for trans-shipment of the Jews to Cyprus. British officials in Jerusalem said the large numbers aboard the Pan Crescent and the Pan York made this procedure unfeasible.

The Jewish Agency in New York described the refugees on the two ships as victims of anti-Semitism whose position in Rumania had become increasingly difficult. The insistence of the Palestine Government on maintaining the existing 1,500-a-month quota in disregard of the United Nations recommendations, according to the Jewish Agency, "has been a heart-breaking disappointment and the refugees have taken their future into their own hands."

Holland Government has awarded the Resistance Cross to the Unknown Soldier of the Warsaw Ghetto Battle.
